

What do we do?

We are a learning and development business that leads change and development, helping individuals and organisations to become more successful.

Because we believe that being able to build successful relationships is the key to being successful in business (and in life in fact!), at Good Day Yellow we provide businesses and individuals with a range of skills, tools and knowledge to help them build those relationships and achieve their goals.

Who helps us do what we do?

We have a small team but don't want this to limit the work that we do for our clients. We believe that strong businesses are based on strong relationships and we think you will be interested to find out more about the relationships that help us to do what we do.

Our website tells you more about:

- Our Trusted Business Partners
- Our Resource Network
- Our Memberships of Professional bodies

What are our Values?

Whoever we are working with we always believe in being...

Genuine Engaging Collaborative
Challenging Pragmatic

Our Solutions?

Some of our clients have a clear idea of the solution that they're looking for to address their challenge and come to us to find it. Others just know that there is a challenge to overcome and want to work with us to find a solution. Our solutions are flexible, they will be based on meeting your specific needs.

We have designed solutions to focus on:

- Self awareness
- Building and maintaining relationships
- Conflict Management
- Influence and Persuasion
- Communication skills
- Management development
- Performance Management
- Team development
- Leadership

Who is behind Good Day Yellow?

Two like minded colleagues, now friends too!

Nicky Cowling and Judith Yates have over 40 years combined experience in business and people development, across professional services, corporate and public sectors. They have been working collaboratively for over 10 years and enjoy working with teams and individuals at all stages of their development. The combination of Nicky's Chartered Accountancy, and Judith's customer service backgrounds provide a wealth of knowledge and skills that they believe can deliver great results for you, your business and your people.
